EDITOR'S NOTE

THE chief object of this Note is to put in its true perspective the part played by the Editor in the production of this work.

Since the summer of 1916, he has always been fortunate enough to find helpers who have taken such interest in the work and displayed so much ability over it, as to leave him increasingly little to do beyond making suggestions and taking decisions. The name of the first of these helpers, J. F. Willoughby, is on the Roll which he helped to compile. He died in 1918 in the Oxford Base Hospital, when on the point of receiving his Commission after a most promising career in one of the Officer Cadet Battalions.

From the summer of 1918 the Editor has had the assistance of Miss W. M. Gibson. Since the Armistice she has practically taken over the editorial duties, and to her unremitting labour the production of this final edition is chiefly due.

Besides these two, many friends have helped at one time or another; conspicuous among them being Miss Evelyn Davenport, who after five years of strenuous war service found relaxation in helping to compile these lists.

In every successive edition the Editor has borne testimony to the excellence of the work done by the College compilers. It would be impertinent for him to praise them for what they have done out of the fullness of their collegiate pride and love, but he may be permitted to thank them heartily for the ready help and consideration which they have always given him.

INTRODUCTION

The Oxford University Roll of Service contains the names, fourteen thousand five hundred and sixty-one in number, of those members of the University who served in the Military and Naval forces of the Crown during the War. When the War broke out the country was unprepared for it. We had almost completely neglected to produce many of the materials necessary for war. In one thing only we were magnificently provided. We had produced the men. They were so many and so good that they achieved the immense task of forging, during the War itself, the weapon that was to give us victory.

During the eight or nine years before the War there had been a great quickening of military activity in the Universities. Partly, no doubt, this quickening was due to the tension of the political atmosphere and the imminence of the German threat. But it was wisely encouraged by the authorities, and especially by Lord Haldane, who deserves not a little credit for his patient and persevering efforts to enlist the Universities in the cause of national defence. Commissions in the Army were brought within the reach of graduates. Military History was given a recognized position among University studies. A Delegacy was appointed to superintend the instruction of Army candidates, and the University contingent of the Officers' Training Corps grew and flourished. In place of the handful of volunteers who in the mid-Victorian era were regarded by their undergraduate fellows as a body of eccentrics, addicted to an unusual form of sport, the University, a year before the War, turned out, for review by Lord French, some twelve hundred Officer Cadets, very much in earnest, and representative of all the best sides of University life.

Then the War came, and trained, or half-trained, or untrained, the University sprang to arms. An American Rhodes scholar who had come to Oxford a year or two before the War once said that he was sorry for those of his countrymen who left Oxford before the outbreak of war, and equally sorry for those of them who made their first acquaintance with Oxford after the War had begun. None of them, he said, could know Oxford. What he had seen, and could never forget, was that quiet life of sport and leisure leaping and passing like a flame. The War began during the Long Vacation, when very few of the undergraduates were in residence. A Committee of the Military Delegacy sat in a dingy little room in Alfred Street to interview all Oxford men who applied for commissions. A torrent of young life surged through that little room, eager, and even gay, light-hearted but not light-minded, fully conscious of all that was involved in the test that was now at hand. More than two thousand candidates were interviewed in August and September 1914. Of these the great majority received commissions. When the University met again in October the number of undergraduates in residence was reduced to about fourteen hundred, of whom about eight hundred were undergoing an intensive course in the Officers' Training Corps. By the end of the year 1917 there were only three hundred and fifteen students in residence. Of these some fifty were Oriental students, twenty-five were refugees, chiefly Serbians, some thirty were medical students, and about a hundred and twenty were members of the Officers' Training Corps, waiting till their age should qualify them for admission to a Cadet Battalion. The military history of Oxford, during the later years of the War, is to be read among the records of the battle fronts, from Flanders to Mesopotamia.

The services of Oxford to the nation and to the national cause cannot be fully stated in this Roll of Service. Many names deserve remembrance which do not appear in this list. Foremost among these come the names of those young officers who were trained, during the progress of the War, in the Cadet Battalions formed at Oxford and quartered in certain of the Colleges. As early as December 1914 it was decided to found here a School of Instruction for young officers. The School got to work in January 1915, and by March of the following year about three thousand young officers had passed through it. Then it was superseded by the two Officer Cadet Battalions, in which candidates for commissions, many of whom had served in the ranks, underwent a very complete course of training, lasting at first for four months and, later on, as the system developed, for seven months. The strength of each battalion was about seven hundred and fifty, and they were quartered by Companies in Keble, Wadham, Hertford, New College, Magdalen, Trinity, Balliol, St. John's, and Worcester. In 1915 there was also formed at Oxford a School of Military Aeronautics, which began by training young officers, but after a little time was changed into a Cadet School, for the training of about a thousand cadets. The cadets and mechanics were housed in Christ Church, Queen's, Brasenose, Exeter, Lincoln, Jesus, Corpus Christi, and Pembroke; they had their aerodrome at Port Meadow and a camp in the University Parks. Certain of the scientific departments of the University were almost wholly devoted to their needs.

The cadets who passed through Oxford under this scheme were invited to consider themselves Oxford men, and accepted the invitation. The work was hard and the discipline strict, but they lived the collegiate life, and enjoyed it. There were competitive sports—boat-races, football, and cricket—among the several Colleges, and a fervent spirit of College loyalty grew up with amazing rapidity. The consequences of this are not easy to forecast. The cadets who passed through Oxford during the War, who lived in the Colleges, and belonged to them, and paid allegiance to them, are about equal in number to the other living members of the University. They have left Oxford, but they have not forgotten her, and she has now a host of enthusiastic champions and friends in every one of the Dominions. They would not wish to deny to their foster mother the right to feel pride in their doings.

Another group of men, most of whom wore no uniform, rendered good service to the cause. The scientific laboratories of the University were put at the disposal of the Government, and worked hard at the problems referred to them. To enumerate their achievements, in Physics, Chemistry, Physiology, and Pathology, would demand a whole volume. All military operations depend for their success on efficiency at the base, and this War more than any earlier war was based on science. The science of wasting and killing has made enormous progress during the War, but it is sometimes forgotten that the science of saving and healing has kept pace with it. To succeed in war a nation must excel in both sciences, and if ever a complete history of the War shall be written the work of Oxford men of science will have an honourable place in it.

Very early in the War the Examination Schools were converted into the Third Southern General Hospital, and Somerville College was given up by its staff and students to become a branch hospital. Oriel College lent one of its quadrangles for the housing of the dispossessed Somerville students ; University College provided additional accommodation for hospital patients ; Merton College gave quarters for the nurses.

Destroying and preserving make up the whole art of war. If any one, suffering from mental fatigue or sensual disgust, is tempted to believe that these processes annul each other, and inevitably make of war a wanton and foolish business, Oxford has supplied him with the remedy for that sickness. The Clarendon Press, during the whole progress of the War, though deprived of the services of virtually all its men of military age, was active in the production of books and pamphlets, most of them written by Oxford men, setting forth the causes and issues of the War—a mine of information, and an armoury of apologetics. This War library, being written to vindicate the British cause, may be called special pleading ; but let it be compared and contrasted with the whole body of apologetics produced by the German Universities. The comparison will prove what cannot be proved by the ordeal of battle, that the failure of Germany, on which the War has now set its seal, was a failure in intelligence and sympathy.

Here then is matter for three more volumes of Oxford War Records. But this Roll of Service comes before and above them all. It prints the names of those who through a long series of academic generations were nourished at Oxford, and who, when the call came, because the call came in the name of charity, gave their bodies to be burned. The gift of those who gave their lives is here specially recorded, and indeed, among the early volunteers, these are in a majority. They were the makers of the new army. They had put away all thoughts of safety. They cared only to maintain their cause, to assert their allegiance, and to make a rule and habit of devotion. The wounds and maims of these and others are not here recorded—it would make too long a tale. Nor are the deeds described by which decorations were won, except the deeds of those, sixteen in number, who were given the Victoria Cross. Soldiers themselves honour the Victoria Cross, because they know that it is one of those rare distinctions which are given to none but the deserving. But they know also, better than civilians, that only a fortunate remnant of those who have deserved the Victoria Cross receive the award. The bravest deeds in war are seldom done in the sight of witnesses; no reporters are present when a post is held to the last man. Too much stress must not be laid on decorations. The honour due to the men on this Roll is due to their likenesses rather than to their differences. They lived and fought together. The bravest of those who wear crosses and ribbons could find his fellow, if all were known, in that obscure company who wear no decoration but the single word Missing inscribed after their names.

Much thought has been expended, during the War and since, on the fittest way of honouring the dead. They will not come back, and we, who remember them and think of them, like to believe that they will always be remembered. But let us be just to them. They did not ask, when they gave their lives, that their memories should be preserved. There have been nations (there are some to-day) who make divinities of fame and glory. That has never been the habit of thought of the English people. Our dead were content to save England. If they could see Oxford, as Oxford is to-day, with the War won, they would be pleased with that living memorial. Even if they had failed to save England, they well knew (though no one can explain it) that their sacrifice had an absolute value, and was not made in vain. We grope for some sign or token from them, and here and there, far away from the graves where they lie, we find it. Their virtue, which was a live thing, cannot be engraved on stone or printed in a book, but it still is here, to be sought for among other live things. The words Courage and Duty—or rather, the ideas of courage and duty, for Englishmen use the words very sparingly—are enriched by a great bequest. Fellowship and friendship mean more to-day than they meant before the War. The air that children breathe, even when they are at play, now comes to them tonic, from the heights. These things are the touch of live spirits, present or absent. The names here printed in thick type have appeared in many Oxford lists before this. We print them now, with reverence and affection, for the last time, in this final Roll, as a tribute from the University to the dearest of her sons.

For most conspicuous bravery, coolness, and determination during severe operations of a prolonged nature. It was owing in a great measure to his dauntless courage and inspiring example that a serious reverse was averted.

He displayed the utmost energy and courage in forcing our attack home. After three other Battalion Commanders had become casualties, he controlled their commands, and ensured that the ground won was maintained at all costs.

He frequently exposed himself in the organization of positions and of supplies, passing unflinchingly through the fire barrage of the most intense nature.

His gallantry was inspiring to all.

For most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty on July 31, 1915.

When on a flying reconnaissance over Ostend-Bruges-Ghent he was severely wounded (his right thigh being broken), which caused momentary unconsciousness, but by a great effort he recovered partial control after his machine had dropped nearly 3,000 feet, and notwithstanding his collapsed state succeeded, although continually fired at, in completing his course, and brought the aeroplane into our lines—half an hour after he had been wounded.

The difficulties experienced by this officer in saving his machine, and the life of his observer, cannot be readily expressed, but as the control wheel and throttle control were smashed, and also one of the under-carriage struts, it would seem incredible that he could have accomplished his task.

Subsequent to a landing having been effected on the beach at a point on the Gallipoli Peninsula, during which both Brigadier-General and Brigade Major had been killed, Lt.-Col. Doughty-Wylie and Capt. Walford organized and led an attack through and on both sides of the village of Sedd-el-Bahr on the Old Castle at the top of the hill inland. The enemy's position was very strongly held and entrenched, and defended with concealed machine-guns and poms-poms.

It was mainly due to the initiative, skill, and great gallantry of these two officers that the attack was a complete success.

Both were killed in the moment of victory.

For most conspicuous bravery on October 14, 1915, in the Hohenzollern redoubt. When nearly all his men had been killed or wounded, and with only two men available to hand him bombs, Captain Vickers held a barrier for some hours against heavy German bomb attacks from front and flank. Regardless of the fact that his own retreat would be cut off, he had ordered a second barrier to be built behind him in order to ensure the safety of the trench. Finally he was severely wounded, but not before his magnificent courage and determination had enabled the second barrier to be completed. A critical situation was thus saved.

For most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty during the heavy fighting near Fauquissart on September 25, 1915.

Lt. Maling worked incessantly with untiring energy from 6.15 a.m. on the 25th till 8 a.m. on the 26th, collecting and treating in the open under heavy shell fire more than 300 men. At about 11 a.m. on the 25th he was flung down and temporarily stunned by the bursting of a large high-explosive shell, which wounded his only assistant and killed several of his patients. A second shell soon after covered him and his instruments with débris, but his high courage and zeal never failed him, and he continued his gallant work single-handed.

For most conspicuous bravery, skilful leading, and determination in attack. The tactical situation having developed contrary to expectation, it was not possible for his company to adhere to the original plan of deployment, and, owing to the difficulties of the ground and to enemy wire, Capt. Colyer-Fergusson found himself with a sergeant and five men only. He carried out the attack nevertheless, and succeeded in capturing the enemy trench and disposing of the garrison. His party was then threatened by a heavy counter-attack from the left front, but this attack he successfully resisted.

During this operation, assisted by his orderly only, he attacked and captured an enemy machine gun and turned it on the assailants, many of whom were killed and a large number were driven into the hands of an adjoining British unit. Later, assisted only by his sergeant, he again attacked and captured a second enemy machine gun, by which time he had been joined by other portions of his company, and was enabled to consolidate his position. The conduct of this officer throughout forms an amazing record of dash, gallantry, and skill, for which no reward can be too great having regard to the importance of the position won. This gallant officer was shortly afterwards killed by a sniper.

For most conspicuous bravery. When the enemy exploded a mine, Lieutenant McNair and many men of two platoons were hoisted into the air, and many men were buried. But, though much shaken, he at once organized a party with a machine-gun to man the near edge of the crater and opened rapid fire on a large party of the enemy, who were advancing. The enemy were driven back, leaving many dead.

Lieutenant McNair then ran back for reinforcements, and sent to another unit for bombs, ammunition, and tools, to replace those buried.

The communication trench being blocked, he went across the open under heavy fire and led up the reinforcements the same way. His prompt and plucky action and example undoubtedly saved the situation.

For most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty when in command of his battalion.

Lt.-Col. Bushell personally led C Company of his battalion, who were co-operating with an Allied regiment in a counter-attack, in face of very heavy machine-gun fire. In the course of this attack he was severely wounded in the head, but he continued to carry on, walking about in front of both English and Allied troops, encouraging and reorganizing them. He refused even to have his wound attended to until he had placed the whole line in a sound position and formed a defensive flank to meet a turning movement by the enemy. He then went to brigade headquarters and reported the situation, had his wound dressed, and returned to the firing line, which had come back a short distance. He visited every portion of the line, both English and Allied, in the face of terrific machine-gun and rifle fire, exhorting the troops to remain where they were, and to kill the enemy.

In spite of his wounds this gallant officer refused to go to the rear and had eventually to be removed to the dressing station in a fainting condition.

To the magnificent example of energy, devotion, and courage shown by their commanding officer is attributed the fine spirit displayed and the keen fight put up by his battalion, not only on the day in question, but on each succeeding day of the withdrawal.

For most conspicuous bravery when in command of a small party on the left of a raid on the enemy's trenches. He gained his objective in the face of much opposition and by his magnificent example and daring was able to maintain this position for a considerable time according to instructions. During this period 2nd Lt. Wearne and his small party were repeatedly counter-attacked. Grasping the fact that if the left flank was lost his men would have to give way, 2nd Lt. Wearne at a moment when the enemy's attack was being heavily pressed and when matters were most critical, leapt on the parapet and followed by his left section ran along the top of the trench firing and throwing bombs. This unexpected and daring manœuvre threw the enemy off his guard and back in disorder. Whilst on the top of the trench, 2nd Lt. Wearne was severely wounded, but refused to leave his men. Afterwards he remained in the trench directing operations, consolidating his position, and encouraging all ranks. Just before the order to withdraw was given this gallant officer was again severely hit for the second time, and while being carried away was mortally wounded. By his tenacity in remaining at his post though severely wounded, and his magnificent fighting spirit he was enabled to hold on to the flank.

For most conspicuous bravery, skilful leading and handling of his battalion in a very critical situation during a withdrawal. When the rearguard was almost surrounded and in great danger of being captured, Lt.-Col. Collings-Wells realizing the situation, called for volunteers to remain behind and hold up the enemy whilst the remainder of the rearguard withdrew, and with his small body of men held them up for 1½ hours till they had expended every round of ammunition. During this time he moved freely amongst his men, guiding and encouraging them, and by his great courage undoubtedly saved the situation. On a subsequent occasion when his battalion was ordered to carry out a counter-attack he showed the greatest bravery. Knowing that his men were extremely tired after ten days' fighting he placed himself in front and led the attack, and even when twice wounded refused to leave them, but continued to lead and encourage his men until he was killed at the moment of gaining their objective. The successful results of the operation were without doubt due to the undaunted courage exhibited by this officer.

- He volunteered for rescue work in command of M.L. 254. Following Vindictive to Ostend when off the piers a shell burst on board, killing Lt. Gordon Ross and Deckhand J. Thomas, wounding the coxswain and also severely wounding Lt. Drummond in three places. Notwithstanding his wounds he remained on the bridge, navigated his vessel, which was already seriously damaged by shell fire, into Ostend Harbour, placed her alongside Vindictive, took off 2 officers and 38 men, some of whom were killed and many wounded while embarking. When informed that there was no one alive left on board he backed his vessel out clear of the piers before sinking exhausted from his wounds. When H.M.S. Warwick fell in with M.L. 254 off Ostend half an hour later the latter was in a sinking condition. It was due to the indomitable courage of this very gallant officer that the majority of the crew of the Vindictive were rescued.

Died on Aug. 4, 1917, of wounds received in action at Brandhoek. V.C. won at Guillemont on Aug. 9, 1916.

For most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty.

During an attack he tended the wounded in the open all day, under heavy fire, frequently in view of the enemy. During the ensuing night he searched for wounded on the ground in front of the enemy's lines for four hours.

Next day he took one stretcher-bearer to the advanced trenches, and under heavy shell fire carried an urgent case for 500 yards into safety, being wounded in the side by a shell splinter during the journey. The same night he took up a party of twenty volunteers, rescued three wounded men from a shell hole twenty-five yards from the enemy's trench, buried the bodies of two officers, and collected many identity discs, although fired on by bombs and machine guns.

Altogether he saved the lives of some twenty badly wounded men, besides the ordinary cases which passed through his hands. His courage and self-sacrifice were beyond praise.

Bar to V.C. won at Wieltje, July 31-Aug. 2, 1917.

For conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty when in action.

Though severely wounded early in the action whilst carrying a wounded soldier to the dressing station, Captain Chavasse refused to leave his post, and for two days not only continued to perform his duties, but in addition went out repeatedly under heavy fire to search for and attend to the wounded who were lying out.

During these searches, although practically without food during this period, worn with fatigue and faint with his wound, he assisted to carry in a number of badly wounded men, over heavy and difficult ground.

By his extraordinary energy and inspiring example he was instrumental in rescuing many wounded who would have otherwise undoubtedly succumbed under the bad weather conditions.

This devoted and gallant officer subsequently died of his wounds.

For most conspicuous bravery and determination on Hill 60, near Ypres, on Apr. 20 and 21, 1915, when he held the left crater with his platoon, some men of the Bedfordshire Regiment, and a few reinforcements who came up during the evening and night. The crater was first exposed to very heavy artillery fire which broke down the defences, and afterwards throughout the night to repeated bomb attacks which filled it with dead and wounded. Each attack was, however, repulsed, mainly owing to the splendid personal gallantry and example of 2nd Lt. Geary. At one time he used a rifle with great effect, at another threw hand grenades, and exposed himself with entire disregard to danger in order to see by the light of flares where the enemy were coming on. In the intervals between the attacks he spent his whole time arranging for the ammunition supply and for reinforcements. He was severely wounded just before daylight on Apr. 21.
